Will Xinjiang & China produce solar panels?

Xinjiang will produce about half of the polysilicon in these panels, based on BNEF projections, and China will account for more than 80% of the overall supply. But consumers can't track the provenance of their panels, since raw materials from multiple factories mix together along the solar supply chain.

Does Xinjiang use forced labor to make solar panels?

Allegations have been raised before that forced labor in Xinjiang has been used to produce polysilicon, a key component for making solar panels. But this latest research indicates that the practice is also used in the mining and processing of quartz, the raw material at the very start of the solar panel supply chain.

Is Xinjiang a good place for solar energy?

Xinjiang alone produces nearly half of the world's solar-grade polysilicon, and is home to factories for some of the industry's biggest players. Meanwhile, many countries are betting on solar as a critical form of renewable energy as they work to transition away from more polluting power sources.

Does China make solar panels?

China has invested over USD 50 billion in new PV supply capacity – ten times more than Europe – and created more than 300 000 manufacturing jobs across the solar PV value chain since 2011. Today, China's share in all the manufacturing stages of solar panels (such as polysilicon, ingots, wafers, cells and modules) exceeds 80%.

Does the Xinjiang solar industry have a labor transfer program?

Picarsic's team in January released an analysis of the Xinjiang solar industry's ties to the government's labor transfer program. Horizon's findings dovetail with many of the documents retrieved by Zenz, as does an October report by

S&P Global Market Intelligence.

How much does Xinjiang Uygur solar project cost?

China Energy Investment Corp is planning a 400 MW solar park in the Xinjiang Uygur autonomous region. The Xinjiang Uygur solar project is expected to cost US$249 million.
